

Indian Curry

is to the people of the East, What Catsup or Worcester-shire Sauce is to those of the West.

Anyone who has traveled in Japan, China or the East Indies knows that there is no more palatable dish prepared than curry and rice, or the many other ways in which it is brought into use by residents of those countries.

The demand is so great that inferior preparations are placed on the market and sold to the uninitiated as the real article.

"While the palate is still hot with a curry, an unflavored dish seems insipid."

No one has ever disputed the fact that the people of the East know how to, and do, live on the best the land affords.

In the lower Fort street window of our store is a display of the

Genuine Indian Curry Powder

that is prepared by us strictly according to the original receipt, and when the Pacific Club, Hotel and commissary department use it and no other, we have no hesitancy in selling it and recommending it to the public as the STRICTLY PURE Curry Powder. A trial is all that is required.

Shaving a Lady.

A story is going the rounds concerning "Tom the Barber," whose dexterity with the razor is a household word in Bombay.

A lady just arrived from England drove to the hotel in Bombay which had been recommended her and was given a spacious bedroom, which she was told had just been vacated by a military officer who had gone up country. She was very tired and very sleepy, and after dinner she retired at once to rest, with an instruction that she was not to be disturbed in the morning.

Imagine her surprise when, shortly after sunrise, she awoke to find half her face covered with lather and a ferocious native holding a razor in close proximity to her throat. She shrieked aloud, and Tom the barber, who was in bed, fled.

When the alarm subsided, it transpired that Tom had a contract to shave the departed officer at a certain time every morning, asleep or awake, and that he was unaware of the fact that the bedroom had changed hands. Tom makes it his boast that he can shave a man without arousing him from slumber.—Scottish Nights.

Mrs. A. Inveen, residing at 720 Henry Street, Alton, Ill., suffered with sciatic rheumatism for over eight months. She doctored for it nearly the whole of this time, using various remedies recommended by friends, and was treated by the physicians, but received no relief. She then used one and a half bottles of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which effected a complete cure. This is published at her request, as she wants others similarly afflicted to know what cured her. TOUR OF INSPECTION.

Commissioner Fitzgerald Leaves for Island of Hawaii.

Labor Commissioner Fitzgerald and Secretary Greene sailed on the Mauna Loa this morning on a tour of the islands. They are accompanied by W. H. Hoogs and J. F. Brown, who will guide them through the various plantations they are to visit. The party will be gone nearly two weeks, and will "do" the islands pretty thoroughly. The party will first pay a visit to Honolulu, where they will remain a day and then to Naelehu and Palala, remaining a short time at each place. The volcano will next be visited and a short time spent at the crater. Returning seaward the party will visit Oahu and Hilo, and the surrounding country, visiting all the plantations possible in the brief time allotted them. It is Mr. Fitzgerald's wish to visit the other islands also and make his investigation as thorough as possible, but the time of his visit is so short that he fears that he cannot get clear around.

THE PRESIDENT'S PICTURE.

Secretary Givins, of the Chinese Bureau, received from San Francisco by the Mariposa a shipment of a few hundred buttons, bearing a fine engraving of President Dole and inscribed with the Hawaiian motto, which are destined to become very popular. The picture of the President is finely engraved and printed on a light background. Over it is the inscription "Au mau ke ea o ka aina i ka pono." (The life of the land is continued through righteousness.) Beneath the picture are the words "President Dole." The idea of such a button originated with Mr. Givins. He also has buttons bearing pictures of Washington, McKinley and the Hawaiian flag.

HONOLULU ROAD CLUB.

At the meeting of the Road Club, held last evening at the Y. M. C. A., the following officers were elected to serve six months: W. W. Harris, president; C. L. Clement, vice president; Kirk Porter, auditor; Ed Dekum, secretary; C. M. Murray, treasurer; T. V. King, captain; George Angus, lieutenant.

For the time being the initiation fee has been done away with and the dues reduced to fifty cents per month. The object of this is to allow those who desire to enter to do so without inconveniencing them to any extent. New features were suggested and adopted that should increase the membership to double what it is at present.

THE TROUBLE ON KAUALA.

The information that came from Kauai regarding the trouble there is a trifle misleading. Mr. Hackfeld stated this morning that Mr. Hofer did not wound any of the Chinese. "Mr. Hofer, the bookkeeper, fired his rifle over the heads of the Chinese, while H. Walters, a luna on the plantation, used his revolver in self-defense by firing two shots against a Chinaman, who was swinging an axe against him. One of the shots hit the Chinaman."

A BOARD OF OFFICERS.

Capt. Schaefer, Capt. McCarthy and Lieut. Towse comprise a committee chosen at a meeting of the officers of the National Guard of Hawaii last evening to draw up by-laws for the new organization to be known as the Board of Officers. Nothing of any importance was transacted at the meeting.

Two years ago R. J. Warren, a druggist at Pleasant Brook, N. Y., bought a small supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He sums up the result as follows: "At that time the goods were unknown in this section; today Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a household word." It is the same in hundreds of communities. Where ever the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy become known the people will have nothing else. For sale by all druggists and dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., agents for H. I.

THE OLDEST ENGLISH PAPER.

It is the London Gazette and Was Published first in 1665.

The oldest English newspaper is, though few people know it, the London Gazette, which was first published on Nov. 14, 1665, known as the Oxford Gazette from the fact of the parliament sitting at Oxford. This name was changed on Feb. 5, 1679, to the present one. But though the London Gazette contains some items of much interest to certain people, such as those who have received "honors" at the hands of royalty or those whose appointments are announced, it is not a newspaper in the usual sense of the term—that is, as being read generally by the public.

This honor of being the oldest newspaper of this class in the British Isles, and hence probably in the world, may be unobtrusively awarded to Barrow's Worcester Journal, which made its appearance in 1690, ten years before the beginning of the eighteenth century. It has always had a wide circulation among the higher classes of its district and is today as vigorous as ever. But when it first came out it was not under its present name, and this fact is of importance in considering its claim to the premier honors of the journalistic world.

Perhaps we ought to avoid the pain of being the down of English journals to the Lincoln, Rutland and Stamford Mercury, still published weekly at Stamford. This paper has now, as ever, a truly great circulation and an enormous influence in the eastern midland district. Its title is exactly the same today as it was on the day it was first published, 174 years ago. Hence this important factor should almost assign to it the first place among extant newspapers.

There is in the Leicester museum a copy of the 1719 issue, consisting of four pages and a half. Its style is that of the old news letters. In 1743, 1855, its circulation had become 11,000 a week, the highest outside of London. Its price was then twopenny, but is now a penny, with the circulation of 25,000 weekly. Thomas Cooper, the famous Chartist, was on the staff in his younger days. The political complexion of this celebrated paper is Liberal.—London Answers.

GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN.

Those Whom He Has Held and Expected to Hold Upon His Knee.

Citizen George Francis Train of New York said the other day that he often takes on his knee three generations of children and sees no reason why, in some cases, he should not take four. Talking about Mrs. Delamater, who was Nellie Sands, the well known society belle, he said that she was his little friend when as a child she used to talk to him in Madison square. He meets all the children who go there on fine days, and Nellie was one of his favorites. In due time she became 12 years of age, after which they are not children to him, and he drops them from his list of intimates, although he retains friendship for them all their lives, if he considers them worthy of it.

He lost sight of her for some years, and one day she met him in the park and came forward to greet him. He put his hands behind him and said gently:

"Nellie, you know I never shake hands, and you are too old for me to take on my knee. You are a young woman now, wearing long frocks. Still I am glad to see you looking so well."

Time passed, and on a bright afternoon a nursemaid, in her white cap and apron, led toward him a baby just able to walk.

"Mr. Train, I want to introduce to you our little one. Its mamma said I was to bring it to you and tell you that you used to take its mamma on your knee."

"Who is its mamma?"

"Mrs. Delamater."

"Now," said Mr. Train, in telling the story, "I did not know Mrs. Delamater, and I said so. I do not forget names. But the girl said I did and insisted on it. At last I asked her what madam's maiden name was, and she told me Miss Sands."

"Well, I took the baby up, and when I sent it away at last I told the nurse to tell madam that I expected to know her grandchildren. And so I do. Why not?"

Why not, indeed?—Philadelphia Press.

Waiters in Cheap Restaurants.

A New Yorker who in the course of a long and varied career has patronized all sorts and conditions of restaurants has discovered that the cheaper and poorer the restaurant the more likely are the waiters to be born Americans. At the more expensive restaurants the waiters are, as a rule, French, and always foreign. English, Irish and German waiters are usually found in less expensive places, and one is not sure to find an American until he reaches restaurants of the cheapest sort.

The New Yorker who has made this discovery accounts for it on the ground that less servility is expected at the cheap places than at the more expensive restaurants. The same feeling of independence which keeps American men and women from becoming household servants prevents the first from becoming waiters at restaurants where too much deference to the customers is required. Unfortunately for his theory, he has also discovered that fees, which a truly independent man would spurn, are as much appreciated at a cheap restaurant as they are at an expensive one. They procure a deference, too, which would not be out of place in restaurants where Americans are present by him to be too independent to work in. The theorist is not so much annoyed at his experience as at the practical inconvenience of finding the practice of feeling extending to the cheap restaurants.

Customers Want Hood's.

"We order Hood's Sarsaparilla in large quantities and it is the only blood purifier which a druggist can buy in large quantities without risk. It is selling very rapidly and customers who buy it once are sure to call for Hood's the next time. We believe Hood's Sarsaparilla must possess true merit in order to retain its popularity. Its sales exceed all similar preparations and its praises are often heard."
